

Parrish Construction Group Recaps 2011, Looks Forward to 2012
Finishing Projects and Beginning New Ones, 2012 Looks Busy for Georgia Firm

ATLANTA (January 3, 2012) – The Georgia construction firm that specializes in education, commercial and industrial projects for public and private sectors closes 2011 with prestigious activities under its tool belt. Without much vacation, it celebrates the New Year with many more projects on the books.

Parrish Construction Group recently participated in the Georgia School Boards Association (GSBA) and Georgia School Superintendents Association (GSSA) Annual Conference as a platinum sponsor. Parrish hosted a dinner at Day Hall at the Atlanta Botanical Gardens for the more than 300 conference attendees. The GSBA/GSSA Annual Conference, held each year in December in Atlanta, provides school board members and school superintendents powerful information unique to the needs of Georgia’s educational leaders.

Also, Parrish is currently finishing dorm renovations on Halls 1-4 at Albany State University in Albany, Ga. The $80,000 project includes demolition and installation of floor tile in the 1st floor corridors and entryways of the existing rooms. The Parrish team has worked through the holidays, and should complete the project the first week in January.

Parrish is frequently awarded projects with Georgia Southwestern State University (GSSW). Most recently, Parrish was awarded the Educational Building Cooling Tower and Air Handling Unit Replacement project. Additionally, Parrish completed a walk-in freezer replacement project in the dining hall kitchen at the Marshall Student Building. This $50,000 project was scheduled to be completed in the New Year, but was completed early. Finally, Parrish recently completed the Lighting Motion Sensor project. This $110,000 project included installing 350 lighting motion sensors throughout the campus.

“This last year, Parrish was really blessed,” Dave Cyr, founder of Parrish Construction Group. “We were able to keep our team working in a recession and we gave back to the community who continuously supports us.”

Other news from Parrish includes another $110,000 project that will begin early this year, a Design-Build project to complete the football stadium visitor’s side bathrooms renovation at the Americus Sumter HS South Campus. Also, Parrish was a platinum sponsor of the GSBA/GSSA Annual Conference and an exhibitor at the Winter Event.
